HILDREN AID PROB

In their investigation of the slaying of little Louise Stauda at Dedham on Monday evening of last week the police today had John Noll at headquarters in Dedham for more than an hour questioning him as to what he knew about the case and as to movements of others who might have some information that would help solve the mystery.

Noll's eleven-year-old son, Fred, is a member of the number of times by the police investigating this unusual crime. Today was one of the last persons, so far known, to see little Louise as she walked the meadows in search of flowers. The meadows from West Roxbury may have been in the habit of loitering also.

where the crime was committed were taken to the police headquarters today by Inspector Charles J. Connelley.

"These boys, it is understood, were about the meadows on the day the tragedy occurred. It is not known whether they saw anything to do with the case, but it is thought they might know someone about the neighborhood."

John J. Dedda, superintendent of the school, and John H. Sullivan, janitor of the building, were also interviewed. They said that neither of them had seen the boys and both been doing what they could to keep the schoolboys and girls in the building during the past few days. They already have displayed unusual activity in the past twenty-four hours, flying about the meadows and the school grounds to an extent that those who have been following the case have been led to believe that important discoveries had been made.

REPEATED SUICIDE

Aged Man's Plan to Marry School Teacher Cause of Double Tragedy.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Driven insane by his millionaire father, seventy-three years old, had arranged to marry a pretty school teacher, almost forty years his junior, George E. Sterry, Sr., who, and killed George E. Sterry, Sr., as he sat in his private office at No. 10 Wall street. The son then sent a letter through his own hands. Both were dead when other members of the firm of Weaver & Sterry, Ltd., drug exporters, noticed the crime.

The tragedy was the result of a family arrangement following the death of the father, who died with two children, George, who was then twenty years old, and his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Clark, at No. 10 Wall street, New York. George E. Sterry, Sr., was a member of the firm of Weaver & Sterry, Ltd., drug exporters, and had been a partner in the firm for many years.

It is believed to day that the marriage was intended to be a double tragedy. The father, who was a millionaire, had a large fortune and was a member of the firm of Weaver & Sterry, Ltd., drug exporters.

As soon as he had died the son was placed in the wall near the door. The son, who was a member of the firm of Weaver & Sterry, Ltd., drug exporters, was placed in the wall near the door.

Young Sterry's Death Letter

To Whom It May Concern (the Corner first, I presume): I took a solemn oath (to myself) that my father should never disgrace the memory of my sainted mother. There is not a stain of selfishness in me. Had my father engaged himself to a lady of mature age I certainly would not, nor would any of my brothers, have failed to bid him more than luck and trust he would live forever. I certainly always desired a long and happy life for my "old man"—a term which I frequently and affectionately used to him.

Now, no one in my confidence, but my brothers may draw a conclusion from my double suicide. There is a point where I struck me as particularly interesting. While riding down town on the Ninth avenue car, I cast casual glances on those around me, as they doubled down on me. I thought I desire to convey to this "How many times" would have stared me out of countenance had they known the prominent capitalist in my double crime would warrant to answer?

It seems to me that God has told me to what I am capable of. I prayed to God no less than twenty times a day to show me some other way out of this horrible deed. I believe He has shown me the proper way to save my father from disgrace.

Democratic Chairman Finds Dedham Man Has Taken Management Away from Him.

Chairman James W. Ryan of the Democratic State Committee, who came from Massachusetts to arrange for the city of the Massachusetts delegates to the Democratic convention, made his accusation, like others, in the House.

COMMITTEE FINDS CONGRESSMAN GUILTY OF MAKING ACCUSATIONS IN BAD FAITH.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The special House committee investigating the charges against Representative George L. Lilly, of Michigan, today submitted its report to the House, charging the committee, and arranging Representative George L. Lilly, of Michigan, Connecticut, author of the charges, as having allowed himself to be used as the instrument of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, and "having acted in bad faith."

Such a scathing report on a member is probably unprecedented in the House, and created a sensation of the highest order. The committee found that Lilly's resolution for an investigation was not introduced in good faith; that he had no intention to justify his charges before the committee on rules that reported in favor of the investigation; that he acted in bad faith in making these charges; and that he was guilty of making these charges in bad faith.

RESUME, BIG INCREASE, TRAFFIC

Decided improvement in general business conditions throughout New England this week is reflected in advance from various sources. The rapid increase in passenger traffic of the Boston & Maine Railroad caused the management to replace all the parlor and dining cars which were taken off during the period of depression.

With the increase in passenger service comes an equal improvement in freight business. The through freight traffic, according to the railroad officials, is about as good as it was this time a year ago in this a striking indication of the improvement in the railroad business.

The Dollar That Can't Be Spent.

By Herbert Kaufman.

Every dollar spent in advertising is not only a seed dollar which grows a profit for the merchant, but is actually retained by him even after he has paid it to the publisher.

Advertising creates a good will worth the cost of the publicity.

It actually costs nothing. While it uses funds it does not use them up. It helps the founder of a business to grow rich and at the same time keeps his business from dying when he does.

It eliminates the personal equation. It perpetuates confidence in the store and makes it possible for a merchant to withdraw from business without having the profits of the business withdrawn from him. It changes a name to an institution—an institution which will survive after the death of its builder.

It is really an insurance policy which costs nothing—pays a premium each year instead of calling for one and renders it possible to change the entire personnel of a business without disturbing its prosperity.

Advertising renders the business stronger than the man—independent of his presence. It perpetuates systems of merchandising, the track of which is left for others to follow.

A business which is not advertised must rely upon the personality of its proprietor, and personality in business is a decreasing factor. The public does not want to know the man who owns the store—it isn't interested in him but in his goods. When an unadvertised business is sold it is only worth as much as its stock of good and fixtures. There is no good will to be paid for—it does not exist—it has not been created. The name over the door means nothing except to the limited stream of people from the immediate neighborhood, any of whom could tell you more about some store ten miles away which has regularly delivered its shop news to their breakfast tables.

It is as shortsighted for a man to build a business which dies with his death or ceases with his inaction as it is unfair for him not to provide for the continuance of its income to his family.

Chairman Ryan takes anything but kindly to the calling together of the delegates by Williams and yesterday afternoon expressed himself to the effect that the Democratic organization in the State he should be the one to call the delegates together and not the Quilley House.

Isn't it about time for an independent party, representing those people?

But if you want that big thumb to get out and away from your country's government, you DO want an independent party, and you want to work for it and vote with it. The people do not govern in this country. Only independence in politics will put the governing power in their hands.

ation has been in the minds of men ing, dreamingly, hazily, about a here-

stamping his feet, butting his friend, the law and his shepherd, does not
ent. And for centuries, in spite of all and THROUGH RELIGION, made better short sentences as this from the Tal-
"Vengeance is mine; I will repay."
